

Roberts 370 Pilothouse Cutter - Fully equipped for Ocean Crossings

The Roberts 370 Pilothouse sailing yacht, designed by the Australian acclaimed naval architect Bruce Roberts, is a popular choice among sailors who seek a combination of comfort and seaworthiness.

'Amurest' is a monohull sailing yacht with a robust and reliable design. It features a cutter rig, which includes a forestay and a staysail, providing versatility and improved performance in various wind conditions.

The functional pilothouse offers shelter from the elements, making it an ideal choice for long-distance cruising and liveaboard sailing.

The deck layout is designed for safe and convenient movement when handling sails or anchoring and offers spacious cockpit seating and easy access to the bow.

The interior of this Pilothouse is designed for comfort and practicality, boasting a spacious saloon with seating and a dining area, a well-equipped galley and comfortable sleeping accommodations. The yacht's interior is designed for extended cruising or living aboard and offers an abundance of storage space. 'Amurest' offers a master cabin, guest cabin, functional head with a shower and hot water.

While not known for extreme speed, the Roberts 370 Pilothouse is designed for bluewater cruising, which means it can handle long offshore passages and rough sea conditions with stability and security. The cutter rig and well-balanced design make the Roberts 370 Pilothouse relatively easy to handle under sail. It can be sailed short-handed or even single-handed with the right equipment and experience.

'Amurest' comes with many extras, is ready for crossings and recently had a sensational trip from Hobart to Adelaide (2022-23). Antifoul & engine service have recently been completed (2023).

This Roberts 370 Pilothouse is a versatile yacht suitable for long-distance cruising and those who value protection from the elements, making it an excellent choice for those who seek comfort and safety on the water.
